TRIBAL ART

AUTUMN/WINTER 2008

---

FEBRUARY AROUND THE BAY

San Francisco—The San Francisco Tribal and Textile Arts Show will enter its twenty-third year when it is held at Fort Mason's Festival Pavilion February 13–15, 2009. This is arguably the largest and most important event of its kind in the United States, and it never fails to attract thousands of visitors. This year will feature a special exhibition by Randall Morris of Cavin-Morris Gallery.

Just across the Golden Gate, The Marin Show: Art of the Americas will celebrate its twenty-fifth year on February 21–22 as one of the most extensive showcases focused on the indigenous arts from across North, Central and South America. Exhibited art includes pottery, textiles, sculpture, jewelry, beadwork, baskets, paintings, photography and more. The vetted show also provides a forum for the discussion of issues relating to the arts it offers through several special programs on legal and cultural matters.
